The Communications Advisory Board was created in 1976 to advise in the development and maintenance of a county-wide emergency radio network and to develop and implement rules, procedures and guideline for use of such a network or channels. The board, which consists of 16 members from Weld County law enforcement, fire and EMS agencies, also serves as a liaison to other law enforcement, fire and EMS agencies of the state or other public safety organizations as well as any other organization deemed necessary in telecommunications planning.

“Chief Barbour’s work on this advisory board is appreciated,” said Commissioner Chair Sean Conway. “We look forward to working with him again on future projects.”
