Re: Weld County 4-H Extension to Raise Funds at Farm Show

HELP SUPPORT THE 4-H MEMORIAL ENDOWMENT AT THE COLORADO FARM SHOW

WELD COUNTY, CO – The Colorado State University Weld County 4-H Extension Office invites everyone to attend the Colorado Farm Show, Jan. 28 – 30. Stop by booth 232 in the 4-H building and donate to the Jean Hoshiko Memorial Endowment. Donations of $20 or more will be entered into a drawing for a chance to win an iPad. Winner does not need to be present to win.

The Endowment, which will help secure Weld County 4-H programs for future generations, was named in honor of Jean Hoshiko. The Hoshiko family was, and continues to be, strong supporters of the 4-H program in Weld County.

Those who donate between $1 and $9 will receive a red heart to write their name on and display at the booth during the show. Donors giving between $10 and $19 will receive a green heart they can write their name on. Donors giving $20 or more will receive a gold heart to write their name on and will be entered in a drawing to win an iPad. The winning name will be drawn on the last day of the show. The person whose name is drawn does not have to be present to win.

“We’d like everyone to stop by our booth and learn more about 4-H in Weld County and donate to the Endowment, which will help us continue the great 4-H programs for Weld County youth,” said Keith Maxey, Director of the CSU Weld County Extension Office.

To learn more about the endowment, including the types of gifts that can be donated to the foundation, contact Keith Maxey, director of the CSU Weld County Extension office at 970-304-6535, ext. 2065 or go to www.weld4h.org.
